By Arthur Brisbane

Today, February 13, comes an awe-inspiring eclipse of the sun. It will occur far out in the Pacific ocean, 300 miles east of the Malay Peninsula, sweeping across the Pacific and ceasing about 200 miles before it reaches the coast of Alaska. A few human beings will see it on small Pacific islands, and on ships and fishing boats. The eclipse, without an audience, will be comparable to the falling of a giant tree in a solitary forest, crashing without sound. Where there is no ear to hear the tree makes no noise. Where there is no eye to miss the eclipsed sun's light, the eclipse is not real.

Not so long ago an eclipse of the sun was supposed to indicate God's wrath, the temporary darkness in hours of midnight was believed sent to frighten men into good behavior.

In still more primitive times some demon was believed to have swallowed the sun, and the influence of magicians and pagan priests was needed to make the demon disgorge his prey.

Now any child knows that an eclipse of the sun is the same as when you are reading, and someone passes between you and the lamp.

There is a record of two great armies about to begin fighting, both sides running home as fast as their legs would carry them, when the light of the sun began to disappear.

That old saying about "the government that governs best" has been swept out of the back door. A government that once had nothing to do with any business is now a government that has everything to do with every business.

Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Corp., announced formation of an eleven-million-dollar corporation to promote trade with Russia. This country having recognized Russia with, get this, billions. It seems a good idea to try to get on with the business.

Starting is the announcement that even business about Broad and Wall streets, New York, is to be regulated, told what to do, when to do it and what NOT to do.

Wall Street has always been like the old dragon, Fafner, in the Rhinegold, lying on his precious golden hoard, saying: "I'll be possessed if I am asked to tell all about it, and if anything is back of the pretty stock certificates."

It is a sad day for poor old Wall Street. Father's golden hoard was taken away from him and his 100-year-old hoard of gold changed to a 50-cent dollar and paper, and now he may not even do as he pleases "with his hoard."

Police in Baltimore, arresting Basil Banghart, called "The Owl," were amazed to see the hardened criminal turn white, shaking with fear, submitting without a struggle. The explanation was that Banghart said he "trived" Banghart had been based on him. Had he known it was "only the police" he would not have been frightened.

If his captors had really been enemy gangsters he would have lived less than another half hour and knew it. Gangsters know how to enforce respect for their gang laws.

Banghart, indicted for kidnapping John Factor, occupant of apartment 2 in the two apartments were arrested in the apartment, and police took $12,405, in $5 bills. Gangsters prefer small bills, that attract little attention. Police found also two sub-machine guns, seven revolvers, one sawed-off shotgun, one rifle. "The Owl" was prepared.

Conter, one of Banghart's associates, also arrested, carried $1490 in his pockets. It was a proposition that the criminals being supposed to have taken $105,000 in one haul.

The apartment contained "complete make-up," including many types of moustaches and whiskers.

By order of Justice of the Peace McGraw, four dogs, led by a police dog, that mangled little Joyce Hammond, a six-year-old girl, at McGraw's, N. Y., will be shot, to prevent their being used in the future.

POLICE CHIEF SLASHED BY BARREL

Attorney-General in a Fiery Retort on Needham Killings

Att'y. Gen. Joseph E. Warner caustically criticized Police Chief Arthur P. Bliss of Needham today—but in the tracking down of the Needham machine gun bank robbers and police slayers, the law enforcement agencies of the Commonwealth apparently get nowhere.

Warner had characterized the killing of two Needham policemen as "tooth police work" in connection with the Needham Trust Co. holdup and Bliss had responded with a counter attack charging Warner's comment was part of a political ploy and that the growth of crime was due to lack of action in the attorney-general's office.

It was, therefore, the attorney-general's "turn" and he intended to make the most of it in a prepared statement likening Chief Bliss to General Braddock, who marched his men in the open and all were sacrificed.

In his criticism the attorney-general said nothing to stop the general crime, "Bliss' ignorance is pitiful," Warner stated. He said: "In the first place, I am not a police officer and have no authority to order police departments. Every police chief is supreme in his own domain. If 'tiger' pools and gambling dens, illicit liquor places, dives and joints" are rife, he says they are, the accusation falls flatly upon his brother chiefs in any city or town where they may exist.

He warned police "I hope," Warner added, "that there are none in Needham. Wherever he has received information of the existence of illegal rills, he has used every power to purge them, the Attorney-General stated.

After the Brookline Trust Co. holdup Warner urged police chiefs to prepare a plan and arrange their facilities for immediate notification of surrounding police. "I deemed that lack of telephone lines to the police telephone delay," he said in a disparaging comment on the delayed telephone advice of the Needham crime following removal of police telephones as an emergency move.

Pointing out that the job of arresting is up to the police, Warner stated that if Bliss knows of the location of "joints" which are breeding grounds for "potential murderers" he would advise the R. R. as the first installment on the $350,000 loan for repairing and rebuilding equipment.

N. Haven R.R. Gets $425,000
Washington, Feb. 13 (AP)—The PWA forwarded today a $425,000 check to the N. Y. R. R. R. R. R. as the first installment on the $350,000 loan for repairing and rebuilding equipment.

Three men, two of them armed, were shot today at Salem after they had attempted to cash $200 in bills in a safe deposit box newly hired at the Essex St. bank.

The trio were held on charges of carrying concealed weapons and are to be questioned in regard to the Needham holdup and double murder.

Philadelphia, Feb. 13 (AP)—Steve Hamas had a four pound advantage over Max Schmeling as they weighed-in today for their 12-round bout here tonight. Hamas weighed 193 pounds and the German boxer 169.

Busch, Rich Brewer, Is Suicide

St. Louis, Feb. 13 (INS)—After making his chauffeur turn on the radio and close the double doors leading into his wife's bedroom, August A. Busch, Jr., millionaire brewer and philanthropist, shot himself to death with a revolver in the bedroom of his palatial home at Grant's Farm today.

On a high table beside Busch's bed was found an unsigned note, written with pencil on a plain sheet of paper. It read: "Good-bye precious Mommie and adorable children."

Mr. Busch was the president of the Anheuser-Busch, Inc., one of the world's largest breweries. He was 57 years old.

'KEEP OUT OF AUSTRIA!'

2000 KILLED IN VIENNA

Women and Children Cannon Fodder for Dollfuss Desperate Assault On the Socialists

Berlin, Feb. 13 (AP)—The Berliner Tageblatt's Vienna correspondent reported tonight he had heard rumors sections of the Fifth Austrian Infantry Regiment had deserted to the Socialists. He said the official radio service had been silent since 2 p. m. today.

London, Feb. 13 (INS)—Britain served warning on Germany today that she will oppose any attempt by the Hitler government to intervene in Austrian affairs. The warning was delivered by Sir John Simon, foreign minister. Without mentioning Germany by name, Sir John informed the House of Commons that "the integrity and independence" of Austria is the concern of the British government. Then he added significantly:

"While the British government has no intention whatever of interfering with the internal affairs of another country, we fully recognize the right of Austria to demand that there should be no interference with her internal affairs from any quarter."

The foreign secretary's pronouncement, it is believed in well-informed circles, was the result of hurried exchanges last night and this morning between the British, French and Italian governments on the grave events in Austria.

These exchanges, it is surmised, brought agreement upon a concerted policy against any German encroachment upon Austrian sovereignty in the present crisis and decision that Great Britain should lead the way with an emphatic pronouncement to that effect.

Vienna, Feb. 13 (AP)—Unofficial estimates of the dead in Austria's civil war at 7:30 p. m. said at least 500 had been killed, while rumors, with some basis of plausibility, placed the toll as high as 2000.

The estimates were gathered from all directions as well as they could be obtained through wrecked communication lines and despite the fact that the government was issuing no official list.

Previously, the best obtainable figures had set the list at somewhere between 129 and 200.

No one attempted to estimate how many persons may have been killed when government forces shelled the great Karl Marx apartment house here in Vienna.

The street fighting was so severe in the region of the apartment house that it was impossible to get close enough to gather details.

It was feared that the women and children might have been trapped when the two floors of the street fighting was so severe in the region of the apartment house that it was impossible to get close enough to gather details.

Focus of All Europe's Fears

Engelbert Dollfuss, chancellor of Austria, diminutive in stature but gigantic in statecraft, had the eyes of all Europe focused on himself today as his iron hand smote at the Socialist rebellion. Like the situation in 1914, an Austrian again was the balance between war and peace. (International News Photos)

War Lord Hitler Halts Danzig Break

Editor's Note—One who was quite possible a year ago now appears to be definitely H. R. Knickerbocker, International News Service's famous foreign correspondent, finds as he starts his tour of Europe. In the following article—the second of his series of 36—Knickerbocker tells what he finds in Danzig, where a year ago it seemed certain that the next world war would start, in a break with the Poles. Tomorrow Knickerbocker will tell of the Austrian revolution and reveal his exclusive interview with Chancellor Dollfuss.

Danzig, Feb. 13—Ten million lives of Europeans and Americans have been saved in this city of Danzig. That many lives were lost on the battlefields of 1914-1918. At least that many would be lost in the next war.

That war was scheduled to begin in Danzig. Today it is evident that war is not going to begin here, and Hitler, the warmonger, has become Hitler, the peace-maker, as the lord of Danzig.

But what has America to do with Danzig? How could America live depend upon what happens in this ancient Hanseatic city that belonged to Germany, was taken from her, made into a free city under the League of Nations, and declared a port for Poland? What has Nazi Danzig's new-found peace with Poland to do with the United States?

Just this. There was one preventing war here seemed so slim that today it is no exaggeration to put this peace news in the headlines that normally come along with the news of war, and to express it in terms of millions of lives saved.

JESSIE COSTELLO LIVES HER OWN LIFE TO AFT DEATH OF HUSBAND

CERTIFICATE GIVEN TO 'UNKNOWN'

Widow's Protest Held Up Until Return of Medical Examiner

Jessie B. Costello, acquitted of the poison murder of her husband, today was at least temporarily balked in her efforts to have his death certificate altered to conform with the facts established in her trial.

The Peabody city clerk's office informed her that no change in the document could be made without the authorization of Dr. S. Chase Tucker, medical examiner for Essex County. And the doctor left his Peabody home last night for a vacation in Clearwater, Fla.

Mrs. Costello, whose husband was found dead in his home a year ago Saturday was in bed with a heavy cold when informed that the certificate on file in the local clerk's office attributed the death to "cyanide of potassium; mode of administration unknown."

In a bitter attack on officials who were prominent in her trial for murder last summer the comely brunette widow branded them a "lot of rakers who are trying to hurt me forever." She said she identified the officials as "the state detectives and the district attorney's men."

She declared that she will seek court action to compel a change in the death certificate on the ground that to leave it in its present form would be an injustice to herself and her two children.

"A year ago tonight this home was as it should have been," she said. "My Bill was here. We were happy. Then like a flash it was turned into a house of sorrow. They put me on trial for murder. I didn't do it but I thought when I proved it in court they were satisfied."

"They weren't," she thought. Now they have a death certificate right here in Peabody with a lie written on it. Well, you know that I will have it changed. I will make them change it because it is a lie."

BOY TIED FOR SCOLDING NAPS

Using an American flag as a blanket, James Martin, 12, of 898 Washington st., Weymouth, slept for a week in the attic of his high school during the daytime, he admitted today in Quincy district court.

Judge Kenneth Nash imposed a suspended sentence of one year in the house of correction on charges of breaking and entering and larceny preferred by William Frasier, a game warden. The youth admitted stealing a rifle from Frasier's summer place at Whitman's Camp, South Weymouth.

On the charge of idleness and disorderliness, growing out of his tenancy of the school, he was given a suspended sentence of one month.

No Passport Plea

Geneva, Feb. 13.—The passport office of the League of Nations said it had received no application for a naussen passport from Russia in full, who is now in Athens.

Woman, 75, Gets Younger With Sight, Teeth, Hair

Beaverton, Ont., Feb. 13 (AP).—The strange story of the apparent rejuvenation of Mrs. Mary Ann Elliott, 75, has reached a third and more thrilling stage for her, she said today.

Friends stated her gray hair is darkening, she is cutting a crop of teeth and now, she said, "I can see." She has been almost blind for three years.

Mrs. Elliott declared how she had cut 11 teeth and discarded the rest of her teeth she had for years.

Small and cheerful, and not a little excited about what she described as the "business of growing younger," Mrs. Elliott is making plans for what she will do when brother died of smallpox.

Worth a Fortune, But Walks

Hollywood, Feb. 13 (AP).—Away from financial troubles which dogged him into bankruptcy, Harry Langdon, solemn-faced film funny man, was honeymooning in Arizona today with his third bride, Mabel Shelton Langdon.

He found her, he said, "out behind one of these castles," and married her yesterday.

Perhaps she is checking today to see whether he has overcome an old habit of pinning $100 bills beneath hotel chairs to keep them from being stolen. The comedian's second wife, Mrs. Helen Walton Langdon, told about it when they were divorced in 1922. She said he was funny that way, always watching dollars which came easy and went easier.

He went so quickly the comedian finally filed a petition in bankruptcy, listing assets of $700 and liabilities of $22,000, including $20,000 in income taxes. That was his plea to escape a long series of financial suits which began about the time of his second marriage in 1920.

Then Thomas J. O'Brien, former husband of the actress Mrs. Langdon, filed suit for $50,000, claiming that much was still due her. Langdon's attorney answered with a suit for the return of $15,000 which he said he paid to avoid an alienation of affection action. The court called it a draw.

A cheese salesman, Frank Mongu, asked $10,000 for automobile injuries. A secretary of a Beverly Hills home ended in an $11,000 judgment for James P. Deason, real estate man. Merchants sued for loss of furnishings. Just a few days before Langdon left to be married, his first wife, Frances, filed suit for $50,000, claiming that much was still due her. Langdon's attorney answered with a suit for the return of $15,000 which he said he paid to avoid an alienation of affection action. The court called it a draw.

TWO COOLIDGE AIDES WED

Northampton, Feb. 13 (INS).—A romance that budded at the close of the Coolidge administration has culminated in the marriage of Miss Mary Bak and Herman C. Bealy. It was announced today.

Miss Bealy, 23, was a stenographer to the late President when he resumed his law practice here after leaving the White House. Bealy was engaged as a secretary to Mr. Coolidge to aid in getting material for a daily article for the ex-President.

Both suddenly left the employ of Mr. Coolidge in 1929 and went to work in New York. Today it was announced by relatives that they were married last June.

The revelation that the Carrs, married in the bargain, lived on the United States campus yesterday. It wasn't much of a surprise for other married men, but a lot of students were not end shocked.

Today at B. U. Law School, Tom Carr laughed off any inquiries into the exact manner of his disposal of the $10,000. He did admit the cigarettes, and of course he doesn't smoke. He said he was not end shocked.

New York, Feb. 13 (AP).—Six thousand extra men were put to work today to aid the regular department of sanitation force of 10,000 men to remove last night's fall of snow from the streets. The men were working in snow in inch and a half of snow fell.

JELKE DIVORCE PERCE DIVORCE

Providence, R. I., Feb. 13 (INS).—Hearing in Superior Court on acceptance of a settlement had been the double-barreled divorce suit last June of P. Frasier Jelke, New York, Chicago and Newport stock broker, and his wife, Mrs. Eugenia Westland Jelke. The suit was scheduled for tomorrow, was postponed until March 24.

While no reason was given for the postponement, reports were a settlement had been reached. Another report was that Mrs. Jelke had a divorce in Reno, Nev., following his return from Paris, where he is now hunting.

WORTHY SHOPS OFFERING FIRE ARMS CASE TRIAL

Patrolman is Guilty of Framing Her, Says Police Board

Patrolman Henry P. King of Charlestown was discharged from the police department today after being found guilty by trial board on the charge of a Lynn girl that he framed her for an intoxication arrest when she related his advances.

King's accuser was Miss Helen Everett, 18, whom he arrested near the navy yard on the night of Jan. 14. She was found not guilty of drunkenness at a Charlestown court hearing and her story resulted in an order by Judge Charles S. Sullivan for an investigation.

King was tried Friday before a trial board of his superiors on charges of conduct unbecoming an officer and insubordination. The latter charge was an outgrowth of remarks he made to the board of Miss Everett's arrest when his superior at the station told him the girl was not intoxicated.

Notices of his dismissal was sent by Constable to Capt. Henry Green at station 15 today. King has three days in which to file an appeal in order to get a public hearing.

Miss Everett, who lives at 29 Grant st., Lynn, told of keeping a date with a sailor and later being accosted by the policeman, who she said, threw her to the ground and had her looked up because she would not respond to his overtures. She said she never had a drink in her life.

WHAT LIE GARRIN WELL AGAIN

New York, Feb. 13 (INS).—When a society girl chooses to enter a convent rather than stay at Vassar College there is nothing for her to do but to do so.

This was the attitude today of the family of Natalie E. Carr, who today is studying to enter the Convent of the Reverend Sisters of the Holy Spirit at St. Hyacinthe, Quebec.

Natalie's mother, Mrs. Joseph Carr, put up a hard battle to keep her 19-year-old daughter from taking the veil. But she had to give up in the end.

Natalie's grandfather, Richard Elliot Carr, of Clinton, Conn., from whom she got the name, died last July, to turn up in the Canadian convent later, said today.

When Carr is in the convent with her family's consent. There is nothing she can say.

Miss Carr, 23, was a stenographer to the late President when he resumed his law practice here after leaving the White House. Bealy was engaged as a secretary to Mr. Coolidge to aid in getting material for a daily article for the ex-President.

TIMKEN EMPRESS GIRL AT RACK

Los Angeles, Feb. 13 (INS).—Winning the H. Whitney, multi-millionaire head of a Hartford, Ct., manufacturing company and the former Valerie Timken, heiress, were on their honeymoon here today following their marriage in Reno a few days ago shortly after the new Mrs. Whitney had divorced George R. Surgis of Pasadena, Cal.

"We met each other a year and a half ago and it just had to be," said the bride, who is the daughter of William B. Timken, a president of the Timken Roller Bearing Co. of Canton, Ohio.

"It's forever," said Whitney. Whitney said he and his bride would reside in the east.

Ponzi to Go Free With $83 and Fight Deportation

Other Ponzi story on Page 4

Tomorrow is St. Valentine's Day—but Charles Ponzi, once-time embezzler as a "financial wizard" under state prison who will receive forth in valentines and will own money.

He has earned in seven years of incarceration and a reception by immigration officials.

Once Ponzi rolled up a fortune of $100,000 through international reply coupons and trust investments, who hoped for 50 per cent interest in 90 days.

Ponzi will be released tomorrow, but the prison secretary reads to him the conditions of his two-year parole. His sentence was from seven to nine years, and for the remaining two years he must observe good conduct, but for sorts and liquor.

In addition, he must, if he is allowed to stay in the country, report every month to the state board of parole and account for his conduct.

Percolating the Potatoes

Mrs. Rose Rosenthal of 183 Harvard st., Dorchester, cooked the potatoes for the family dinner today in her coffee percolator. The gas supply failed when the mains became flooded in the Harvard-Emond st. section and housewives resorted to many ploys of cooking. (Boston American Photo)

When Gas Fails 30 Homes Wives Use Wits to Cook

Potatoes boiled in an electric coffee percolator.

Eggs fried over the stove of a housewife who had no gas.

All because people must eat. And because without their ordinary means of cooking, they must devise other.

It is all taking place out at the Harvard and Emmond st. section of Dorchester, where 30 families without gas in their homes. These affected occupy apartments at 182-30 Harvard st. and around the corner at 180-30 Emmond st.

Water-filled mains are believed to have caused the trouble, and an emergency crew of 30 from the gas company has been working since last night digging up and pumping out. They hope that the customers will have their gas by tonight.

But in the meantime the apartment occupants are making the best of it. For instance, Mrs. Rose Rosenthal, at 183 Harvard st., is dropping potatoes in her coffee percolator hooked up with electricity. It takes an hour and a half to cook them, she says. And Miss Mary Hanning, at the same address, gets breakfast down in the basement, cooking her eggs over the coals of the stove used to heat the water for tenants.

And others are either eating out or sending their meals out to neighbors to be cooked.

WOMEN DEFEATED IN Carlisle Vote

Carlisle, Feb. 13.—More men came into the voting booth today to decide defeat of the only two women seeking town office. In addition the voters were against beer and wine.

Arthur C. Leapham was re-elected tax collector, defeating Mrs. Anna Durrant, while Mrs. Charles B. Bearer, candidate for school committee, was defeated by Dexter C. Whittemore.

Ponzi Sees Lesson in Insull's Downfall

Charles Ponzi, "wizard" of international exchange, took $5,000,000 from New England and New York investors before his glittering bubble burst. He leaves state prison tomorrow after having paid his debt to society by more than 10 years behind cell bars.

On a typewriter at the Charlestown prison he wrote the following, which is published without change:

Jail Rum Party Hides Welfare Isle Fears

This is the second of a series of exclusive articles Joseph P. Clark is writing on Welfare Island, New York, where a recent raid disclosed startling conditions to the world. Clark, who is an ex-reporter, served two terms in the city prison where he was a trustee and was in a position to observe what went on all hours of the night and day.

By JOSEPH P. CLARK.
NUMBER 10414, WELFARE ISLAND
Copyright, 1934, by Universal Service, Inc.

New York, Feb. 12.—I walked into a Brooklyn station house one day in June, 1929, and gave myself for a single man. I had been dodging my wife's warrant for four months, and I was tired of being afraid of my own shadow.

The warrant officer who came to take me to the Raymond at 141 Brooklyn, was an okay guy. I saw right away that I wasn't a criminal, and he said that if I had the dough to pay for a bail I wouldn't have to go in the paddy wagon. So we started for the jail to call on my lawyer.

We must have stopped in at least a dozen Brooklyn speak-easies, and I was as drunk as a lord when I finally got to the old Raymond at 141.

They didn't even search me, and sent me to a cell without looking at me. I was as drunk as a lord when I finally got to the old Raymond at 141.

I began my adventures in the city prison so drunk I had difficulty remembering my name when the "buccer," as we call him, called it out in the morning.

After three days I was arraigned in family court. Brooklyn's magistrates said I would either have to put over $250 to go to jail for six months, or I would have to put over $250 to go to jail for six months.

One of the men from Raymond, who had some dough, said he would have a farewell party in the detention hall. I was as drunk as a lord when I finally got to the old Raymond at 141.

He beckoned to a court attendant, whispered something to him and then handed him a key. The attendant came back in about 10 minutes with two pint glasses of whiskey and several dollars of cigarettes.

"The boys and I gulped the pint glasses in a jiffy. I needed a drink with six months staring me in the face. Back to Raymond at 141 to await shipment on the island. Cockey Joe Donovan, a West Side polio character, was in the same cell with me.

"That's a tough joint, that Welfare Island. They'll shake you down, steal everything in sight—and leeches and inmates will kick you all over the joint. It's a tough place for a sucker. Sell your clothes before you go over there. They'll steal them anyway."

So I sold a $3 straw hat, a $1.50

the finish of the measured mile. The American Automobile Association selects for him the Utah lake-bed, paved with hard, well-packed, natural mineral salts.

Such speeds on highways are useless but would be important applied to light units of railroads and transportation, without grade crossings. Three hundred miles an hour would mean Atlantic to Pacific in 10 hours.

Where Sir Malcolm will race, in ancient times lay a great inland sea, as big, probably, as the Mediterranean. Now it has dwindled down to the Great Salt Lake, which, taking in water, means none out, grows saltier by the year.

The steel industry has reached a "new peak" in production. Steel mills are producing 90 per cent of the full amount that they might produce, the best they have done for a long time. This makes you realize that we have had a real depression. The improvement is partly due to the fact that makers of automobiles have unfilled orders that they will hardly be able to fill in the first half of this year.

DELAY CASE OF 'N CRACK' IN CRACK

Washington, Feb. 12 (AP)—The Senate committee today suspended temporarily today to permit the House to bring him back to the committee, and to await the return of the committee which is prosecuting the case against the four defendants.

Senator Robinson, the majority leader, stated the suspension. He called attention that Senators A. C. MacCracken, L. M. Britton, Harris M. Henson and Gilbert L. Thompson did not reach the Capitol for several hours.

The four defendants—William P. MacCracken, L. M. Britton, Harris M. Henson and Gilbert L. Thompson—were in the military committee room.

Thorp Fights for U.S. Commerce Job

Washington, Feb. 12 (AP)—A Senate commerce subcommittee today held its first hearing on the nomination of William L. Thorp, of Massachusetts, to be director of the Bureau of Food and Drugs.

Thorp, a former member of the House of Representatives, was appointed last August, was unfit for the post.

managing any other little child. The dogs, out for amusement, sought the little girl, tore one of her arms badly, sending her to the hospital. Many wrote telling Judge Mayhew that it was a shame to kill the dogs. They were only playful, did not know what they were doing. The justice thinks it a good idea to prevent their ever being playful in the same way again, and the dogs will be destroyed by the county veterinarian.

The average father and mother will induce the judge's decision that while every dog may be entitled to "one bite," not every four dogs are entitled to assume themselves mangling one small girl.

Sir Malcolm Campbell, to break his automobile record of 278 miles per hour, will attempt a record of 300 miles an hour in August, using for speed track the dry bed of the Salado lake, near Salt Lake City, in Utah.

Sir Malcolm's record over a measured mile was made on the beach at Daytona, just back of John D. Rockefeller's Florida house. His new attempt needs a harder track with more room to start, and more to stop at.

Washington, Feb. 12 (AP)—Harry L. Hopkins, CWA administrator, was charged today before the House expenditures committee by Clifford (H. Mass.) with having "runched off" specific question of his administration in previous appearance before congressional groups.

Hopkins denied that many wealthy municipalities had received CWA funds when they were able to take care of their own unemployed. Hopkins said there were many municipalities or if there were any that had been found unwilling to take care of their own.

Clifford wanted to know what was being done to investigate complaints of graft and corruption in the CWA and distribution of wage scales through CWA wages.

GEORGE HOWLAND REVIEWS

Mary Morris Heads Excellent Cast in Drama That Gives Thrills and Chills

A Tuesday morning quarterback, I think I can see how Miss Elizabeth McFadden's dabbling in playwriting (via Smith College and Harvard's 4 Workshop) could have made her a bigger fortune than the one she will net with "Double Door," a witch's level revealed to Boston for the first time last night at the Plymouth Theater. Miss McFadden can contour with a lift of her eyebrows and be quite in order with the remark: "I am doing very well, thank you." So it is and has been. "Double Door" has been playing since early in the season in New York, and Miss Mary Morris in the featured role of Victoria Van Brest of the old trading-post days Van Brest has won herself actual kisses as a she-incarnation of Dr. Fu Manchu, Mr. Hyde, Dracula, Frankenstein, and the Gorgias. If you think readily of other stage-villains, throw them in, too.

In this character of Victoria Van Brest, the author of "Double Door" has founded her property, and in my opinion has also caused her name to undergo. Because I think "Double Door" made believe through the humanness of the chief character, might have attained the substance and the broader canvas of a play like "Hecate" or "The Silver Cord."

For a time last night it seemed probable that the playwright was staging out a picture of a strong woman whose love of family was so tremendous that she would commit even suicide to prevent the sullying or weakening of the strain.

Chills and Thrills
You would have to accept that as something humanly possible. Through the playwright's own along that mental passageway, dark although it might be, the family was so tremendous that she would commit even suicide to prevent the sullying or weakening of the strain.

Miss Morris' powerful performance, imaginatively directed, gradually became to me a series of entrances designed for horror, not much less obvious than a play. The Gorgias (remember?) on from the wings.

As to the play itself, it is a melodrama, not a mystery play, this good play, a theatrical melodrama went forth.

Excellent Cast
Miss Morris is so helpful in the play that I caught myself speculating whether this was really the same nice young girl who beat me three years ago in a Florida eight years ago this month. I am not sure now that I have her right.

To the Oldtimers Go the Laurels

Ann Harding, Richard Dix and Irene Dunne Among Screen Favorites on Program

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Los Angeles, Feb. 23.—Teleview right at our back door is a promise for this coming Saturday night. R. K. O. is excited over the promised experiment and being glibly we are interested. Here's the story. Take it or leave it.

Virginia Bruce, is getting offers to return to the screen. At the time of her marriage to Jack Gilbert she gave up what looked like a promising movie career in favor of marriage. Gilbert, who is a promising movie career in favor of marriage. Gilbert, who is a promising movie career in favor of marriage.

A Line or Two
Devotion, Rap, son of Harry Rap, who has been writing since he was in the cradle and has continued both in and out of college, has a job. He will make a winter sport out of it. Right here in Hollywood in the person of Warren William, who moves out to his right for himself these days in the movies.

Three guesses and a faded rose to the bright girl or boy who knows now she has the full sympathy and support of her millions of fans. She is a girl who has the full sympathy and support of her millions of fans. She is a girl who has the full sympathy and support of her millions of fans.

For her own plans, "Betty" has stage bookends ahead. She goes to New York tomorrow; and there is a full-fledged full-length production to be discussed. "And I do feel fine, 100 per cent," she says. "Never felt better in my life. Youville is tough work, but I love it. I guess I agree with you."

PROTESTANTS AT RISK GUNS BOMBARD VIENNA

The huge building collapsed under the force of shells from howitzers. Elsewhere in the city, fighting apparently had not decreased. But in Vienna, the stronghold of the Socialist party in the nation, it was worst of all. Here, no one knows exactly how many have been killed.

ARCH COLLAPSES

The howitzers apparently smashed the third and fourth floors of the greatest apartment building in Europe. The middle arch collapsed. The shelling of the $400,000 structure was only one corner of the aspect of Austria while the forces of Chancellor Dollfuss struggled to put down the rebellion of the Socialist party.

Battles raged at Steyr, Graz and Linz as well as Vienna. At Steyr, fighting broke out again early this morning when Socialists stationed machine guns on top of a hill commanding the town.

Other forces of Socialists were in possession of the great wartime munitions plant. Government forces charged the plant repeatedly in a desperate attempt to take the position.

Men fell, dead and wounded, but there was no time for opportunity to count the casualties.

Police prepared for a heavy night of violence.

Artillery firing continued late in the afternoon in most of the working class districts.

Quarties could be heard from the direction of the Karl Marx house and in the Floridsdorf and Simmering districts, in which factories are located.

Machine guns had been fired from the windows of the homes of laborers at the soldiers who sought to enter.

The government forces found machine guns, hand grenades, and tear gas insufficient to batter down the stubborn resistance. So they unlimbered howitzers.

MACHINE GUN ACTIVE

Following up the artillery attack, government forces advanced into the courtyard.

Socialists continued their firing from machine-gun nests. Rifle fire also was directed against the attackers.

Hand grenade fighting developed as the combatants came to close quarters.

Socialists, who lost a fight for possession of their own headquarters, were stormed and captured. Eleven were reported dead in this engagement.

At the same time, defenders of the big municipal flat, the Complex Schindler, refused to surrender after they had been handed an ultimatum.

OTHER APARTMENT BOMBED

As a result, artillery fire was opened against the buildings. Field howitzers were used.

Field artillery shells tore great fragments out of one corner of the building.

DEMOCRACY FACES DOOM

Vienna, Feb. 13 (AP)—Traffic events in Austria culminated a long battle between the forces of Democracy and Fascism. The Chancellor Dollfuss, whose bourgeois Christian Social Party held as its cornerstone the conservative representative government, has been forced through the events of the last year to accept as the mainstay of his power the Fascist Heimwehr.

The Socialists, or Social Democrats as they call themselves, were numerically the strongest party in Austria when Parliament was dissolved last year.

Today they are being crushed by the Heimwehr, numerically the weakest.

If that process is completed the Christian Socialists, who control between 15 and 20 per cent of the vote will be left to face with the Heimwehr and the Nazis, who claim a majority of the voting population.

The object of both is "crush democracy forever."

Some observers look forward to a Heimwehr-Nazi "Fascist Front" with the Nazis stronger in numbers, ultimately dominating.

Moscow, Feb. 13 (AP)—The capital of Communism today watched avidly events in Austria and France and, through the columns of the Communist newspaper Pravda, cheered on the fighting workers in both countries.

Gone! That COLD—
When This Remedy Gets Busy!

A cold is no joke and Groves' Laxative Bromo Quinine treats it as none! It goes right to the seat of the trouble, an infection within the system. Proven remedies are largely makeshift.

Groves' Laxative Bromo Quinine is speedy and effective because it is expressly a cold remedy and because it is direct and internal—COMPLETE! It does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats cold germs, soothes the headache and relieves the throat and chest and relieves the system. That's the treatment a cold requires and anything less is taking chances. When you feel a cold coming on, get busy at once with Groves' Laxative Bromo Quinine. For sale by all druggists. See it and ask for it by full name and request a substitute.

Principal outbreaks in Austria today and yesterday were in Vienna (A) and the cities of Linz, Steyr and Innsbruck (underlined). Graz, the capital of Styria, in the southeast, also felt the fury of the revolt. Paris (B) also experienced rioting, and in Madrid (C) 30,000 construction workers went on strike.

"But the government is trying to trample us down," he said.

"We realize our position looks hopeless, but there is only one death ahead of us anyway—it is starvation, or a bullet, or a rope."

"Some day the world will recognize that we fought for the preservation of the rights of the working class, which Chancellor Dollfuss, with all his talk about the millennium, has utterly disregarded."

ANOTHER MONDAY... we didn't feel like being diverted as we skipped the Monday Morning of Diversion at the Hotel Statler... after all there is a limit as to how diverted one can be in February. Next Monday will find us sailing down the sunny Caribbean, under brilliant blue skies to Picture Book Land... we started shopping today for a cruise costume or two... a bathing suit, and shades of the Lorelei, we couldn't resist a baby blue one with shorts. If we ever get up courage enough to put it on and saunter nonchalantly down the decks of the Kungsholm, we will have to be so "over the bay" we won't know WHAT we DO... in our right mind, we know that dimpled knees peeping out from shorts should only be seen in the funny papers.

We want to go shopping mad in Curacao... perfumes, silk, linen, cordials... We want to fly from Colon to Panama and be greeted by the Admiral of the port... we have a letter to him.

We want to see black women as well as black men dive for quarters in Barbados, Little England of the Caribbean... and have flying fish for luncheon at the Aquatic Club...

We can imagine the excitement of the donkey ride over the Andes Mountains... the hairpin turns... the view from the top... orchids for sale on the streets at La Guaira... mm sinking behind the Andes on the trip back... our ship like a white toy in the bay beneath...

MARTHA DEXTER

Panama and Jamaica in One Trip

WE YEARN TO DRIVE THROUGH hot cocones plantations and banana lands at Trinidad... join the crowd emerging from the home of Angostura Bitters armed with avian sticks... hear the Negroes chanting that sweet refrain "Jerry, Jeremiah, My Poor Heart Afire," the African song saved for posterity by Mr. Hartley of the Kungsholm Orchestra...

Lucky US... we are going to travel heavily egg-agers at the Chagres Club in Panama and the Yacht Club in Jamaica... and try Jamaica Rum and Jamaica Ginger together... WOW!

Glass-bottomed boats drifting about the aquamarine harbor at Nassau... by sponges (we don't know what for)... Bahamian lobster for luncheon... and it's always fair weather when the cruise crowd get together at Dirty Dick's...

We will tell you all about it when we return a fortnight hence... we are running away from Old Man Winter, Old Man Care and Old Man Depression and wish you could all come along to the tropics with a capital T.

Shopping for a Summer Wardrobe

BETWEEN TEA-CHATS WE WILL be shopping about for a summer wardrobe for around twenty-five dollars... DID the bargain basement yesterday... result, one tweed coat, very Gariboldi... one checked silk dress, a bit tight across the yoke, but one of those BIB collars is going to help... a dark blue sheer with pique touches to give the right nautical effect... and, if you can bear it, a Breton sailor... to give us that wide-eyed look (snapshots sent on receipt of ten dollars!)

Had to go to Stearns for the swim-suit... they cut them full for such as WE there, and bless their hearts they had a cape to match... we think we will wear in the cape and everything. As this will be our first venture in the briny deep in a decade, you can imagine how our philosophy has changed... no romance for us on this trip... we are going to get full of health and a SUN-TAN!

A merry party left for East Jaffrey on Sunday for the winter snows and sports... in the group were Martha and Jane Dexter, Norma Sturges, J. Murray Thomkins, Jr., Harriet Sturges, Frank Eshelman, Ursula Coles and Andy Clark...

We hear that Eleanor King and Johnny Wilbur are seen going places frequently...

Also going places are Mrs. Gorham Brooks and Andy Hepburn, Mr. and Mrs. Osborne Howes and Mr. Howes' sister, Mrs. Sydney Waldo... they sail for a West Indies cruise this week.

Whitfield Pointers to Go on Cruise

MET MRS. WHITFIELD PAINTER (Midge Morrill) in Stearns buying a bathing suit yesterday... she and her husband have been invited by mother and father Morrill on a cruise on the Mauretania for a trip around the West Indies for a fortnight...

Learned that Charlotte Young is reported to be enticing $150 per month from the New York manufacturers whose models she exhibited in the shops and in the style magazines... she makes a darned cute model and is worth every cent of it. She and young Boyer could start housekeeping on that...

The tabbies are mowing that the first glimpse that Mr. and Mrs. George Powers will have of their new son-in-law from California will be on the day daughter Catherine is married... February 24. Catherine tripped off to the sunny state on a visit and came back to announce that she was going to be married... no parental interference THIS time.

Debbies are mourning that handsome Frau Gleason, one of the best defense men on the Charlotte Young Harvard Varsity Hockey team, is still laid up in the Stillman Infirmary suffering from a bad injury sustained in the B. U. game last week... two torn ligaments will keep Gleason out of the game for sometime, and will prevent his calling on a certain glancing deb for a few weeks.

The Henry Kears (Molly Walcott) are giving a large dinner party before the next Junior Supper dance... Polly Cunningham is also giving a party for a group of young things on that night.

MRS. LYMAN P. GUTTERSON

THIS TRIO OF SOCIETY FAVORITES were snapped as they met at the Copley-Plaza to check up on tickets for a dance to benefit a widely known charity. Proparvulis Club Dance Proves Gay and Colorful Event

THE SEASON, SAD TO STATE, is drawing to an end, with Lent only one day off and the smart supper dance of the Proparvulis Club, at the Copley-Plaza, last evening, was a fitting climax to a winter of gay affairs. The sparkling crystal of the ballroom reflected the dazzling display of spring colors in the gowns... every tone imaginable was there... and the stirring music of Andrew Jacobson's radio orchestra just couldn't be resisted.

Tall and stately as befits the season of the evening, Miss Katherine Devine, popular President of the club, was coaxed to the center of the floor, with music turned in white crepe, with Miss Catherine Grant, in the conventional black velvet and Miss Doris Cahill, radiant in royal blue velvet.

In White Crepe

Recalling the recent wedding of her sister, Jean, Miss Anne Vailley wore her bridesmaid's ensemble of tangerine pebble crepe with tiny hat and veil; Miss Agnes McCardie, a past officer of the club, was becomingly cool in pure white crepe, and tiny sleeve of net; Miss Nora Muller, daintily in pink lace; Dorothy Loughran, attired in white with the fashionable sequin trimming; and Helen Sheehan in pink satin and rhinestones.

We caught a glimpse of Miss Mary Goode in striking hunter green crepe, with pink rose corsage; Miss Helen McGuinness, active member of the committee and "Mary" in the club's recent show, in delicate pink crepe and Miss Marguerite Barry, attractive niece of Rev. Father Barry, in pale pink lace, so modish for this spring.

Thoughtfully contemplating the progress of the club, Miss Doris C. Rooney, one of the charter members, was watching the audience, when we saw her in gay crepe, a tiara of rhinestones in her hair.

It was a gay and happy party and already are they making plans for a post-Lenten repast.

Cass-Shea

THE MARRIAGE OF MISS MARY H. SHEA, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Shea of Brookline to Herbert S. Cass, son of Mr. Edwin F. Cass of Cambridge and Halifax, N. S., took place yesterday at St. Lawrence Church in Chestnut Hill. The ceremony was performed by Rev. John B. Mullin.

Mr. and Mrs. Cass will reside in East Milton after an extended honeymoon.

New Badminton Club Planned

Meeting this evening with Mr. and Mrs. Whitfield Painter will be a group of 40 who are interested in forming a new badminton and tennis club in the quarters formerly occupied by the New Hiding Club. Family memberships are now being made attractive and this temporary executive committee hopes to secure enough to make the plan possible. Some of those on the committee, who met this evening are Mr. and Mrs. Whitfield Painter, George S. Wild, James J. Peltier, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald W. Bird, Miss Mary Emery, Miss Bird, Miss Peltier, Mr. Marshall E. Ryan, Jr., Mr. George W. Wightman and John R. Bird.

First Lady Takes Pity on Squirrels

Washington, Feb. 13 (U.S.)—Mrs. Roosevelt has ordered the White House housekeeper to provide a daily ration of nuts for squirrels which flock about the lawn. With the severe winter and a falling off of voluntary contributions from visitors the squirrels have had a hard time.

Society Notes

MR. AND MRS. JASPER WHITTING, who have been staying at the Victoria Hotel this winter, will leave Boston on Saturday to spend the rest of the season in the South. They will motor from here to Thomsville, Ga., later going to New Orleans, after which their plans are indefinite. When they return, in late April or May they will go directly to their summer place at Dublin, N. H. Mrs. Whitting has been one of the volunteer workers at the information desk of the Women's Division of the Emergency Campaign in the Copley-Plaza.

MISS HARRIET HAYWARD, Mr. Samuel M. Shepard, Miss Anne Shepard and Mrs. Thomas Martin, 24, of Boston are all in New York, registered at the St. Regis Hotel.

Leaders Rally for Drive

With this week's spring-like weather, the flower shop sales for the Emergency Campaign fund are expected to bring out many customers who were not so keen about buying last week's cold. Mr. Albert C. Burrage, Jr., who was confined to his home last week with a cold, will lend some expert advice to those who choose Harry Quinn's shop to buy their valentines on Wednesday morning, and she will act as saleswoman again on Friday afternoon. The Trinity Plot of the Hotel Statler has organized the services of Junior League members for his Valentine Day rush through Miss Nell Todd Bald, executive secretary of the league, and Miss Dorothy Harding, chairman of the debutants members.

Club Fete to Wellesley Club Plans Bridge Parties

Aid Nursery School

MISS NANCY WHITMAN, chairman of the newly formed joint committee to assist the Robert Gould Shaw Nursery School, together with the other members of her committee, are making plans for a dance at the Wellesley Club on Friday evening, March 2, to benefit the Nursery School. The Nursery School of the Robert Gould Shaw House is located at 11 Windsor st. and is rendering an excellent service to children between the ages of two and four years.

Miss Whitman has chosen the Misses Margaret Stockton, Isabella Gardner, Hortense Clark, Susan Minerva, Lorraine Young, Emily Dick and Alice Burrage to serve on her committee.

BRIDGE, PARTIES, SPONSORED by the Boston Wellesley College Club, will take place on Wednesday afternoon, Feb. 14, at the home of four members. The proceeds will be contributed to the student aid fund of Wellesley College.

Mrs. Robert G. Dodge, of Raleigh street, Boston, will entertain members of the classes from 1875 to 1900 at her home. Graduates of classes 1901 to 1920 will meet at the home of Mrs. George Frost, 72 Spooner road, Chestnut Hill.

Classes 1921 to 1923 will play bridge at the home of Miss Louise Walworth, 811 Center street, Newton Center. The bridge party for members of classes 1923 to 1925 will be at the beautiful home of Mrs. Frank G. Allen in Norwood.

Woman's Club Calendar

Clubwomen throughout the State will trek to the Hotel Bradford tomorrow morning to be on hand for the opening of the mid-Winter meeting of the Massachusetts Federation Women's Clubs at 10 o'clock.

"Our Growing Responsibility" is the keynote chosen by the club ladies for this season. Mrs. Frank P. Bennett will preside during the morning program, after Mayor Frederick W. Mansfield starts things off with official greetings.

Mrs. Russell A. Cook, chairman of legislation, will present as speakers for the morning: Herbert Parsons, Hon. Frederick W. Cook, Miss Lillian Kane, Daniel Blomfield, Edw. J. Smith and Martin E. Adams, president of the New England Council of Education. All will discuss current legislation.

The afternoon session opens at 2 o'clock with a musical program. Albert Edward Wiggins of New Bedford will be the featured speaker, taking for his subject "An Educated Woman in This Changing World."

Reports of various committees and the presentation of new clubs will close the day.

TODAY

President's Day—Quincy Women's Club, 2 p. m., in club-house. Twenty-third Birthday—West Roxbury Women's Club, meeting at 2 p. m., followed by birthday party, in Highland Club Hall. GREATER BOSTON GOES TO WAR

Our Soldiers Over Here, Over There
as Recorded for History by Camera

HONOR FRENCH VISITORS—Troops from training camps are represented in the honor guard at the State House in the spring of 1918, as members of the French mission visit the State House. They were received by Gov. Samuel W. McCall. One of the French hero visitors is shown with cane. Others of the group followed in a few seconds. U. S. Army officers accompanied the visitors on their tour of Boston which included calls at the State House and City Hall and also conference with local leaders busy with the numerous war details. Boston honored many distinguished visitors in the days of war. It was all part of the program to win the struggle. (Photo—Courtesy of Ray Hennessey, Natick.)

ON TO LYNN—THENCE TO WAR—In September, 1917, Swampscott was thrilled with the spirit of country-of-work-of saving civilization from being trampled to dust by war gods. Headed by a band of brass, a throng of Swampscott volunteers are bound for the enlistment headquarters at Lynn—where they swore to do or die for their country. Note the youth in the foreground doing a "fiddle" act as he proudly watches the brass horn player. Some of these boys never came home. Many Gold Star Mothers live in Swampscott. (Photo—Courtesy of William F. Connolly, 131 Blossom st., Lynn.)

Father Duffy's Thoughts About Preparedness

The late Father Francis F. Duffy, fighting chaplain of the old Fighting Sixty-ninth (165th Infantry, A. E. F.), holder of innumerable decorations for valor and idol of the entire A. E. F., in an interview shortly before his death said:

"I've seen what lack of preparation will do.

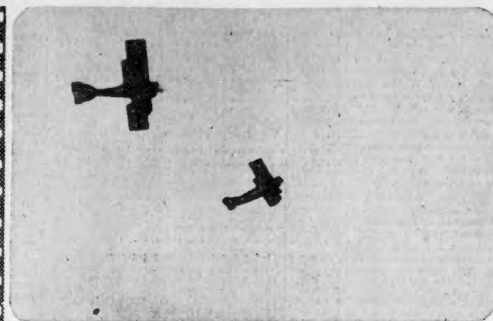

"The old Sixty-ninth Regiment of New York Infantry became the 165th Infantry of the Rainbow Division. The Rainbow Division was fairly well prepared. But we would get replacements sometimes just before a battle.

"I've seen lads come into the front trenches who had never discharged a service rifle and never donned a gas mask, some of them not even with identification tags.

"And I've seen them dead within twenty-four hours."

DEATH IN THE AIR—A long range lense catches a German and an Allied plane in mortal combat over the lines. This startling sequence shows an actual air duel, from its inception to its end, with destruction of one of the planes and the death of its pilot-combatant.

MOSES' ATTACK ON POLICY STIRS ALARM OF G. O. P.

Party Leaders Fear Flareback From Bitter Lincoln Day Address; Election Threat Is Seen

By BERNARD J. DONERTY

Inspiration or ruination. State Republican leaders were debating today whether the attack on the Roosevelt administration by former Senator Moses of New Hampshire, made at the Middlesex Club Lincoln Day dinner at Hotel Statler, had upset their chances for success in the fall election or whether he was in reality pointing the way out of the wilderness.

As the keynote at the dinner, held at the opening gun in the 1934 campaign, the man who drew the crowd of 700 to the Middlesex Club Lincoln Day dinner at the Hotel Statler, had upset their chances for success in the fall election or whether he was in reality pointing the way out of the wilderness.

REACTION FEARED
While many of his allies brought laughter and some applause, the attack on the Roosevelt administration was not universal. It was plain that many thought that Moses had gone too far. Former Senator Moses was one of seven speakers at the dinner. He was followed by Governor Channing H. Cox and Frank G. Allen and former Sen. William M. Butler. J. H. Hutton, former attorney general and president of the club, presided. The dinner was given in aid of the State Republican fund. The speaker shared the honors when Commissioner of Public Safety Daniel S. Brannan and former State Treasurer John W. Hayes of Greenfield, the latter a candidate for the nomination for lieutenant governor, pleaded for support to place police control under a single head.

"MARCH TO MOSCOW"
Moses charged that the United States has been "tired into a clinical laboratory where callow students whose brow has never been touched with sweat of honest toil and whose hands have never held a manual instrument more weighty than a fountain pen dabble play about the operating table where the body politic is stretched."

"The operation may be successful but the patient may die," he declared. "We are commanded to sit tight and hold on to silver and in darkness and to trust to the skipper adding to this probably our inherent faith in that special providence which is supposed to watch over fools, drunkards, men and the United States of America."

The cold bill, he characterized as the latest and probably not the last step "in the march to Moscow."

He stated that the equalization "utilization fund of two billion dollars" was a "monstrous" monetary system of the country in the hands of the secretary of the treasury "whose fiscal expenditure is the scandal."

He admonished the party to "stand young," and "warn the republicans of the entrenched opposition with a banner as its head reading 'Back to Reality'."

He also attacked the advent of a President who even more freely for the advantage of a group of beneficiaries and political cheerleaders, but who no doubt make up a considerable number of the electorate. Moses concluded: "CONGRESS 'ENSLAVED'."

He pictured the departure of a Congress which was constantly at the mercy of a "small body" of interests who claimed a party name only on election day, or when committee pieces were to be awarded, also the replacement of that Congress by a "bulky" legislature, "a Congress majority which 'admitted its powers and which seems to exercise its power in the name of the people' for the purpose of drawing salaries and merrit."

"This majority goes forward under a such as severe as that which ever whittled over the back of a galley slave bending to his oar in Ireland, but which the ship of state into waters uncharted, unexplored and filled with dangers," he declared.

"There is little difference," he told his hearers, "between a screaming dictator and a smiling despot."

And for good measure he said there is talk that after the complete domination of the banking trust Henry Ford's wings are to be clipped.

BANK ADVOCATES BLOC
Merrill M. Johnson, Boston attorney, the Lincoln orator, urged the party to choose candidates as the Great Emancipator was chosen. He held that the men are more interested in personalities than in policies. The times, he contended, cry for leadership.

At-Cor. Gaspar G. Bacon, candidate for governor, received an enthusiastic reception. He advocated formation of a powerful industrial bloc of the seaboard states of the East to combat farm and urban blocs, and a complete revision of the tax system in Massachusetts.

He held that the time has come when tax-exempt provisions should be drastically modified. Properly heretofore escaping taxation, he declared should be brought into the revenue-yielding field to relieve the home-owner and rent payer.

SALTONSTALL SILENT
Seeker Leverett Saltonstall of Boston disappointed many who expected him to make an announcement as to his future political aspirations. He has been mentioned as a prospective candidate for lieutenant governor or governor. He confined his remarks to comments on the national administration, warned against the trend toward bureaucracy, and told his hearers that the test of the first primary convention in June will be whether candidates are the free choice of the party or controlled by the "bosses." If the latter, he said, the primary may as well be repealed.

The new Republican commandments as expounded by ex-Sen. George H. Moses of New Hampshire at the Middlesex Club Lincoln dinner meet in the Hotel Statler were greeted with mixed emotions. Ex-Gov. Huntley Spalding of New Hampshire and ex-Gov. Channing H. Cox were interested listeners. Some of the party leaders expressed the fear that the attack of the New Hampshire ex-senator threatens success of election next fall.

Dear Mr. Myers:

As the result of our daily used car special, in the Boston American-Advertiser, January 25th, we sold the model 45 Pierce Arrow Sedan to a gentleman from Rhode Island.

Of course, our liberal policy of conditioning most of our used cars, year after year, to maintain their maximum mechanical efficiency, beauty and comfort, was an important factor in soliciting this splendid result.

We shall continue to advertise our "Low Price Specials" daily, in the Boston American-Advertiser.

Yours truly,

STREET INTO FLEES SHOTS

Charlestown police today fired five shots at a stolen car in a vain effort to stop it, and later found the machine abandoned in Monument St. near the Bunker Hill shaft.

Sgt. Benjamin Peters and Patrolman Albert Cheshire, in a patrol car, first sighted the machine, the property of Robert Barnham of Gray St., Arlington, in Bunker Hill St.

Its driver managed to elude them, but a few minutes later, they found the machine abandoned. It had been reported stolen in Charlestown.

How the Red Sox And Braves Can Save $50,000

By AUSTEN LAKE

IT is spunky of the Red Sox and Braves owners to take their big squads of players and newsmen down to Florida for the month of March, because this is a spendthrift habit which they could abolish by mutual consent. I have been watching the Harvard baseball fans fighting around their hostess' sanitarium with its non-shadow lighting and its thermostat heating which gives the same effect as Florida, except for the vital virtues of the Gulf and the soft side of palm fronds, and I think I can suggest a way for the Red Sox and Braves to save $50,000 annually.

Now I am likely to get my hair parted with a tire iron for this, seeing that the winter training tour is dear to the newspaper experts, who spend six months each year looking forward to banking on the silver sands and acquiring beautiful mahogany tans, and five months in reviewing their adventures, some of which are picturesque and racy enough to baffle description. There was one time we went out to the kennel club, near the St. Pete dog track and caused the orchestra to jump through the rear windows.

taking the snakes around their necks in sheer fright. But never mind. . .

It is no small item to pay the haulage, hotelage and feed bills of forty players and a winter. Why the ginger ale account of the boys in the back room alone runs into a pretty figure, and keeping everybody in fresh linen and hundreds of dozens of new baseballs amounts to enough to support a large family in a small town for a year. So, if I can save the Boston owners a piece of each I am only too happy to serve, and besides I may not get down to Florida with them next month. I hope my motives will not be misconstrued by the other writers.

How the Harvard Training System Works

THE Harvard boys, in their hot house infirmary, with their catch-nets hanging from the ceiling, do not have sudden rain squalls or gusts of cold wind blowing down on them like we used to have each training season in Florida, and they don't have to listen to Al Lang, the St. Pete weather salesman, tell them how extraordinary it is to have a Northerner come squealing along right at this time. Or they don't get apricot wrinkles and shrivel down to bony skeletons under a roasting sun, like the Red Sox used to in Bradenton, Fla., where the sun would fry an egg on a hotplate and the pine bleachers grew blobs of oakum and rain to stick your breeches fast.

And if the Harvard batters hit a shiny new ball, at $1.50 each, it does not cost into Tampa Bay to be snatched up by the fiftieth of a second, which would bite off your hand and your wrist if you were not watching, or trickle into the alligator or rattlesnake neck. No sir! The Harvard drives fly into their fishnet hangings and a half dozen balls will last a whole winter.

For $50,000 the Red Sox and Braves could put up one of those hot-house sanitariums behind the center field bleachers, with adjoining dormitory wings. Because it was not so long ago that the Philadelphia Athletics, obliged to punch their pennies, trained in their own ball yard, and I have heard Eddie Collins tell how the lads played sweat in the murky gloom under the stands and grew expert at snugging drives that carried off concrete supports. Of course, in those days, following the 1913 breakup of the Athletics, the team was made up of local minors and steamfitters and Connie Mack considered it a shame to subject their natural hardiness by giving them delicious of grand old Southern luxuries.

This will be a year when there are no municipal cash subsidies offered the ball clubs, unless perhaps Bill Terry's New York Giants have talked some money out of the Miami people, who have a knack for promoting free bankrolls. There used to be a chamber of commerce optimists bearing garlands of hibiscus blossoms with a silver cornet band blaring music as the players stepped off at the station. And I can recall how the Braves of

SCHMELING'S CHOICE OVER HAMAS

Philadelphia, Feb. 13.—Max Schmeling, the Black Ulfen of Germany, will attempt before a raring, rabid crowd tonight the thing that precedent says is impossible.

He will start the long tedious climb back toward the heights he once occupied as heavyweight champion of the world, the occasion being a 12-round fight at Convention Hall here with Steve Hamas, former Penn State athlete. Schmeling was favored to win at odds of 8 to 5 but a lot of people were remembering what happened to him the last time he stepped in the ring—and others were trying to forget.

The last time he was in the ring they almost had to carry him out, feet first. For on that memorable evening last June, Schmeling was surprisingly beaten down and practically out by Max Baer just at a time when the German was clamoring for a return fight for the championship.

His bout with Hamas, therefore, will be the first of what is scheduled as a "comeback" campaign. But a lot of depressed heavyweight champions have tried that, and none could succeed. Dempsey rounded out. Neither could Corbett, Wildcat or the rest.

Apparently, therefore, when a heavyweight champion is licked, he stays licked. But none of them ever believed this was true and Schmeling is no exception. He has been picked as the "guinea pig" in the first experiment. The role hardly fits the former Penn State star, however. He is a good puncher. He once knocked Tommy Lewis out and, while it is true that he has showed little since then, he has counted a most dangerous opponent, especially for an ex-champion who has plenty of money and who was banged around pretty violently the last time he went to the post.

The fight, being the best Philadelphia has had since the first Turner-Hennessy event, will gross as high as $40,000.

Hanley Favors Change in Pass Rule

Chicago, Feb. 13.—Dick Hanley, Northwestern football coach, expressed himself today as satisfied that the football rules committee, in session at Atlanta, had registered a "first down."

Hanley, one of the leaders in the annual battle to have legislation passed that will increase the possibilities of the offensive side of football, agreed that the forward pass rule changes will be helpful. "The rule committee," Hanley said, "didn't go the whole way, but they did make a yard. I suppose they didn't care to model the intercollegiate game too closely on the professional, but I do wish they had passed that rule permitting forward passing from any point behind the line of scrimmage."

The forward pass rule change, calling a pass over the goal line merely an incomplete pass instead of a fumble, will aid offense, Hanley said.

"It will keep the defense from mauling too much, and it will also keep the defense on its toes, trying to figure out what's coming. That will aid offense."

LOCAL BOYS ON GREEN SEXTET

The Dartmouth sextet, which plays Harvard at the end of the Friday night will be one of the finest ever to come out of the hills of Hanover. The sextet scored its second Big Ten triumph of the season last Saturday when it defeated the Crimson, 4 to 1, before a winter-cold crowd.

Previous to defeating Harvard the Green had split with Yale in two games. Another split with Princeton was also expected. The sextet is expected to be one of the finest ever to come out of the hills of Hanover.

DOCTOR O.K.'S PUBLIC BOW FOR INJURED ICE OF ICE

Toronto, Feb. 13 (AP)—Irvin (Abe) Bailey will lose in the public ice of the benefit concert given in the benefit game being played for him between an all-star National Hockey League team and the Toronto Maple Leafs.

The entire receipts of the game will go to Bailey, who suffered a fractured skull in a game at Boston, December 12, which may force his permanent retirement from professional hockey.

Dr. O.K. has authorized his appearance at the game. It will be his first since the accident.

SOX SABBATH GAMES BLOCKED

The Boston City Council tabled the application of the Red Sox to hold Sunday games at Fenway Park when said application came up for consideration yesterday.

Councilman Robert Wilson, chairman for the council's selection of the Red Sox, said that the application claimed that the Sox would hold the games on the same day as the bonding companies that hold the insurance on the park relative to injuries to spectators, make proper arrangement, the council would be held up.

100 Candidates Report For Tech Rowing

Activity, enthusiasm and high spirits prevail at the Tech boat-house, on the Charles, as nearly 100 stalwart oarsmen sail in and fro on the sliding seats, responding to the lusty exhortations of that grand old man of the rowing game, Bill Haines.

A novel schedule looms ahead for the Engineers, and the Cardinals and Gray boatmen are getting all possible work in before the ice breaks on the river and releases the powerful six footers for the initial spurs over courses on the Charles.

Tech will host a veteran crew when the men take to the water early in March. Probably the feature of the season thus far has been the return to action of Al Mowatt, who sits in the stroke seat to guide the strokes of his seven buddies.

WESTFALL VETERAN Captain Westfall is in the number six seat in the boat-house machine workout, directly in back of Ed Lowenstein, the glint of the Tech oarsmen. All of the first eight have seen action as members of

HOPPE IN TIE FOR LEAD

New York, Feb. 13 (INS) Will Hoppe enjoys a tie for the lead today with J. N. Morrison of Yale, Cal. in the world championship chess-cumulation billiard tournament at the Capitol academy. Each has won four games and lost none.

The race was narrowed down last night when one of the outstanding favorites, Johnny Levitt, was defeated by the veteran Alfred De Oro, 50 to 46, in 15 minutes. The latter had been "seeded into the tourney only to fill a gap at the last minute, and no one credited him a chance before the start.

Hoppe came through to victory in the knockout games against Kirby Matuszewska. The score was 50 to 40 in 44 minutes.

Lamatra Sets Bowling Record

Scraper C. Feb. 13 (AP)—Joe Lamatra of Bridgeport, a member of the New York Yankees' bowling team, set an unofficial world's record for seven games last night when he collected 993 pins while participating in a match with a team of Baltimore, Md. bowlers.

The record of 993 is held by Jack Wilson of New Haven, which was set on Jan. 26. Lamatra's record was set in a match with a team of Baltimore, Md. bowlers.

MAX SCHMELING will attempt to upset ring precedent when he begins a new come-back campaign by meeting Steve Hamas in a 12-round bout in the Philadelphia Auditorium tonight. The German believes that a victory over Hamas will start him on the road to the heavyweight championship.

It will be Schmeling's first bout since he was knocked out by Max Baer in New York last June. Baer, who had been in the game since the days of the prizefight, was under the power of a terrific right to the jaw and when he was sent down, he was sent down. Mr. Boston

It will be Schmeling's first bout since he was knocked out by Max Baer in New York last June. Baer, who had been in the game since the days of the prizefight, was under the power of a terrific right to the jaw and when he was sent down, he was sent down.

Schmeling was disgusted with the boxing game following his defeat by Baer and had no great desire to box again. The passing of time has probably caused him to forget some of the lessons he learned from Baer and to believe that with different fighting tactics and better training conditions he can regain his lost championship.

The history of the ring says they don't come back. No heavyweight champion has ever regained his title after he has been knocked out in a title bout. I think Baer would knock out Schmeling if he tried to meet again, but I don't know. Schmeling is too big and powerful for the German. He is a real fighter and refused to give a contract to meet. Carnera was not the colonial fighting machine into which he later developed.

Schmeling's Ring Fortune

SCHMELING has fared better financially than any fighter who has tried to come back. He received $100,000 for his first bout with Baer in New York. He received $100,000 for his first bout with Baer in New York. He received $100,000 for his first bout with Baer in New York.

Married Movie Star

SCHMELING MARRIED a German moving picture star, Anna Ondra, following his knockout by Max Baer. He purchased her for $100,000. She was thought to be a movie star. Schmeling's bride declared she did not wish him to be a fighter. I do not know whether she is interested in proving that married men make better fighters than single men. For her sake I hope Schmeling does better. He is a real fighter and refused to give a contract to meet. Carnera was not the colonial fighting machine into which he later developed.

Thundering Herd Breaks From Barrier in Armory Games

The thunder of racing feet filled the East Armory as this group staged a wild rush from the barrier to the first corner in the 1000-yard run of the English-Latin games. The race was won by Al Brance, of Latin, with Ben Yaffee of English second, and Dick Bigwood of Latin, third. Note large number of boys racing, a good indication of the way Boston schools get the boys out for sports. (Boston American photo.)

Max Schmeling Picks Must Avoid a Right or a Tough Assignment He'll Wish He Was For Tonight Back in Berlin

By Jack Kofoid

Max Schmeling is on the spot. If he makes a mistake tonight in Philadelphia's Convention Hall, he might as well go to Berlin and his gorgeous Anna Ondra. That in itself would be no hardship, but when Max returns to his bride he will tell her that he is lined up for a fight with the heavyweight champion that once was his.

In his current campaign . . . as a starter . . . he meets Steve Hamas . . . and if he wins is half promised to meet King Levinsky in Chicago. Hamas, it seems, will provide a lot of the hardest job. The noisy Kingfish roared into Madison Square Garden Friday, boasting as usual that he was going to do it. A practically unknown kid named Charley Masters won from him all the way . . . but Levinsky was saved for the record books by a decision that most Garden spectators agreed smelled to the deep end.

The King is no more than a rough slugger, with a clown-like style. He never started championship contention and never will, as Masters pretty conclusively showed. But here I am raving on about that fellow when I started to discuss Masters, Schmeling and Hamas.

I like Schmeling personally. I am a quiet, modest young man with a strong, friendly, friendly nature. I think that a good fight and might have been a great one had he not been unlucky enough to meet the heavyweight champion.

Yes, that's what I said. I've seen the Black Union in action nine times. In four of those battles he scored knockouts. His finish against Johnny Rizzo was as big a dramatic as you'd care to see. A strong man, he was sent away at each other with whining fists and suddenly one of them goes out on his feet . . . Rizzo, the Iron Man, who had never before been flattened. I think that a good fight and might have been a great one had he not been unlucky enough to meet the heavyweight champion.

Boucher Takes Second Place

Montréal, Feb. 13 (AP)—Taking advantage of Joe Primeau's illness, Frank Boucher of the New York Rangers has gained second place in the race for national hockey league scoring honors.

The crack Ranger center has scored 35 points, through Sunday's game, to trail Chuey Conacher of the New York Americans, who along with Conacher was one of several of Toronto's games last week, he third with 24.

Conacher leads in goals scored with 25, and Boucher in assists with 25.

Another member, another Maple Leaf, is the league's "bad man" without much dispute. He has served 12 minutes in the penalty box. By Monday night, the Arsenal, who along with Conacher was one of several of Toronto's games last week, he third with 24.

Passing the Puck

Confronted with a string of three road games, the Rangers will bear down against the Bruins tonight at the Garden. The Blue Shirts are tied with Detroit for the American Division lead and are out for every possible point from now until the final game.

The Maple Leaf Hockey Club has donated a trophy for the "Ace" hockey game tomorrow night and suggested to Pres. Frank Calder of the National Hockey League that the cup be a perpetual trophy for annual games, the proceeds from which are devoted to a fund to provide for injured hockey players.

Since the first announcement of the "Ace" trophy game, Frank Seiko, business manager of the Maple Leafs, has been literally swamped with reservations and three quarters of an hour after the start of the Appreciating the fact that Boston boasts a tremendous track following, most of whom are primarily interested in witnessing the establishment of new records, Harold W. Dibbles, general manager of the Boston Garden, has already put into operation plans for a ten lap track which will be one of the fastest indoor surfaces in the world.

At present the Garden track measures 12 laps to the mile. Experience indicates that many seconds slower than the Madison Square Garden circuit which has 11 laps to the mile.

There are several other advantages to the present Garden arrangement. The banks at both ends are unusually steep, causing runners to break stride both going up and coming down, and the stands are so close to each other that fans are able to see the most exciting of performers.

ALLIED WITH SPORT

Dibbles has been closely allied with the sport. He feels that the 8000 crowd at the K. of C. games in January and the 15000 spectators at the B. A. A. games last Saturday, warrant giving him the opportunity of seeing such runners as Glen Cunningham, Billy Bonbrun and Johnny Follows competing under ideal conditions. All he needs, before getting down to actual details of the new surface, is the consent of the K. of C., the B. A. A. and Transvaal games committees, the sponsors of Boston's biggest indoor meets.

He expects their hearty co-operation and will then have a leading track architect draw up blue prints. The straightforward stretches will be lengthened and brought in close to the lower tier of boxes and the places will be graduated so that there will be no sudden ascent or descent.

In order to take care of proper visibility from the stadium and balconies, the track will be elevated as much as two feet, thus putting the entire distance in plain sight from every vantage point.

Special attention will be centered on the plastic of the track in view of the intention of hitting on an arrangement which will give the fastest spring conducive to fast running. It may mean leaving a little space between the boards so that there will be no denying effect through overworking.

TEN LAP TRACK

Dibbles is confident that a 10-lap track will add an incentive to the world's most brilliant runners to compete in Boston. He feels that his city is entitled to seeing record breaking performances equally as much as New York, where virtually all of the recent marks have been hung up. New York times would be eclipsed under the plan.

JORDAN MARSH COURT MEN PLAY AT V

The Jordan Marsh Co. Lions basketball team faces one of its hardest games of the season tonight when it tackles the Malden City Club five at the Huntington Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. Both teams are fast and powerful. Paul Pavlakis and Hamilton, high stars of the Retail Store League, and Frank Nease, center of the St. Charles Club, are making the Malden City Club a title threat. Local and Reggelli ally support these three stars.

Jordan Marsh Co. is represented by Duke Peckham of Colgate, Ed Lynch of Canisius, Ray Coughlin of Northwestern, Guy Hill of Kansas, Paul Lynch of the Whitefish, Pete Ward.

After the game there will be dancing with music by the North-eastern College Orchestra.

These capable courtmen, members of the Jordan Marsh Company Lions five, are waiting the call to arms tonight at the Huntington Ave.

Here he is, 10-year-old "Sudde" Baker, "chief" of the first "Secret Agent X-9 Club" formed in the Hutchings st. neighborhood of Roxbury.

So this evening "Sudde" will talk on the air over Station WAAB at 6:30 from the Boston Evening American Studio. Word from "Secret Agent X-9" himself will also be broadcast.

After an absence of only a fortnight, the New York Rangers return to the Garden tonight to meet the Bruins in their final appearance of the season.

During the previous meeting here, the Bruins snapped out of a prolonged slump, in which they had defeated only Los Angeles and tied Chicago in eleven games, by handing a 2 to 1 defeat on the Blue Shirts.

As was the case two weeks ago, the Rangers are battling Chicago and Detroit for the championship of the American Division. They are scheduled with the Red Wings for top honors, a half game up on the Blackhawks.

Since their last visit to the Garden, the Rangers have defeated the two Montreal teams, tied Toronto but lost their fourth game of the season to the Americans.

And they will present a new face in their lineup—Denny Clark, who was recently let out by Ottawa and picked up by Lester Patrick. But, as a defenseman, he is not a threat to the Bruins' defense.

Although they were on the short end of the last Bruins game, the Rangers gave one of the most sensational exhibitions of team play ever seen in the Garden. Seldom have they been so well coordinated.

Books have conquered baseball, temporarily at least, in the case of Fred Noseworthy of Malden who is now a struggling sophomore at New York University.

Freddie dropped in to tell us about it today. He is home for a spell after visiting Boston with the N. Y. U. track team of the B. A. A. meet.

The older of two brothers who have been making athletic history at Malden, Fred was one of the eight selected in the Boston Evening American's amateur contest for a trial on the Brainer farm at Harnishburg.

He regrets that he can't accept after weeks of consideration and consultation with parents and professors, he has decided to continue battling with his studies.

It was a very difficult decision for the young man to reach, for he has one ambition—to become a big league ball player. And here was his opportunity to get a flying start. The struggle he has had to get as far as his sophomore year at N. Y. U. won the day for books over baseball.

INDICATORS OF BUSINESS ARE PROMISING

Barometers Show Rising Tendency Is Prevailing

By FRANK H. MELDON
Financial Editor Boston American
Latest survey of the most extensive series of business barometers which the world has not yet seen, put forward a picture of business which is more cheerful than the pessimism of the past. The barometers show a rising tendency in business activity, and the outlook is more optimistic than it has been for some time.

United States Steel Analysis

By JOSEPH STAGG LAWRENCE
Review of Reviewers
During the fourth quarter of 1933, the United States Steel Corporation showed an operating loss of $1,000,000. This was the first time since 1929 that the corporation had an operating loss. The loss was due to a combination of factors, including a decline in demand for steel and a rise in the cost of raw materials.

New York, Feb. 12.—The inevitable reaction in the stock market came last week. As the average rose after their August-September top and started on the slide of the past July, selling pressure increased. The decline was due to the fact that the market was overvalued.

New York, Feb. 12.—Price changes were mixed, irregularly higher in the first hour of trading on the New York Stock Exchange today.

While a number of rail stocks, silver and specialty equities advanced, the alcohol was heavy along with scattered aviation issues. There was considerable profit taking, but the activity dwindle on the decline.

Stocks received little aid from brass, most of which were not much better than steady. Cotton rallied and dipped. Bonds were higher. The gold currencies gained on the dollar, but sterling was just about even.

Silver mining shares were given new hope by Secretary Morgenthau's statement in the House committee, pledging himself for the rehabilitation of silver. The steel and carriers were sold.

There has been a general feeling of uneasiness in the market since the government last week cancelled the steel contracts. The brokerage circles, however, were still contented over the possible outcome of the controversy.

Stocks turned strong in the closing minutes of the first hour. Smelting was better than 2 points higher. American Smelting Corp. of Pachuca, Howa Steel, and National Union showed gains of 1 1/2 to 2 points.

United Aircraft sagged over 2 points before recovering to the loss. Aviation Corp. was down a shade. American Can was down more than 2 points. Gains of 1 point or better appeared for 20 stocks.

Boh Aluminum, United Fruit and Wright. United Pacific was a leader in the carrier group, soaring 4 points.

Sales to 11 a. m. approximated 650,000 shares.

Second hour prices were firm against the higher set the first period. Volume dried up as advances showed little inclination to advance further. Cars extended gains of more than 2 points. Gains in U. S. Steel were boosted to around a point.

Alcohol shares softened near the end of the period with a decline. Commercial showing a loss of 4 points. U. S. Industrial Alcohol was down over 2 points.

Sales to noon approximated 1,300,000 shares.

Fourth-hour prices were slightly below the tops set earlier in the session with the weakness in the alcohol shares bringing a general profit-taking movement. National Distillers and U. S. Industrial Alcohol and American Commercial showed losses of 4 points.

Metal shares held their ground. U. S. Steel was a steady performer. Wright Aero dropped 2 points. To Bethlehem Steel was extended moderate. American showed a gain of almost 4 points.

Gilchrist Bargains Besieged

Temped by a host of amazing bargains, shoppers of New England besieged Gilchrist's Cash and Carry Warehouse Saturday for the first anniversary sale of the cash and carry plan.

In spite of the freezing weather, thousands of value-hunters New Englanders came pouring into Boston for this great event. The attendance increased as the weather warmed until the basement was literally thronged.

While thousands came, undoubtedly thousands were prevented from attending because of weather conditions. Because of many requests, Gilchrist's decided to continue the holiday bargains Monday. All merchandise that was left over at the special birthday prices that revealed on Saturday, on the first of the cash and carry plan, will be offered at the same prices in Monday's event, and in many cases new merchandise will be offered at sale prices to complete the anniversary.

NRA BOOM HOPE, SAYS FILENE

Los Angeles, Feb. 13.—Edward A. Filene, Boston merchant, making an economic survey of 20 states, said in an interview here that income in salaries and wages in the way to bring back lasting prosperity to the nation.

Filene's observation of the NRA code, Filene asserted, "is the greatest step in the nation's history to a new era of living on a 40-hour week."

Thus far on his nation-wide tour, Filene said he has found a feeling of encouragement and improved business conditions everywhere.

Newport Police Rescue Seagulls

Newport, R. I., Feb. 13.—Twenty officers today rescued 12 seagulls from the hands of a boy in the membership in the Audubon Society after rescuing a wounded seagull near Middletown. They gave it first aid and turned it over to the bird commission.
